WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vietnamese lunar new year — Tet, they call it — is becoming tet-for-tet, with some strange coincidences two years apart. Twice, just at the end of Tet, Viet Cong terrorists in South Vietnam attacked American military installations. Twice, after this happened, President Johnson hit back fast by ordering the bombing of North Vietnam. And twice, although not directly, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was involved.

In 1965 the warring sides in Vietnam called an informal truce for the lunar holiday in February. As Tet neared its end the Viet Cong fired mortar shells into the American airbase at Pleiku, killing nine U.S. servicemen and wounding more than 100. That was on Feb. 7. That same day Johnson ordered retaliation: North Vietnam was bombed. And this, although it wasn't realized at the time, began the U.S. air war on the Communists in the north.

But also on Feb. 7 Kosygin was in Hanoi, the northern capital, where he had just made a speech promising the Soviets would give the North Vietnamese all necessary help. His presence there, just as American bombers began to strike, put tension on official Washington which didn't want the Soviets in any way to connect the bombing with Kosygin's visit or with what he said. The Johnson administration insisted the air attacks were strictly retaliatory for what happened at Pleiku.

But this put on ice prospects for visits by Johnson to the Soviet Union and Soviet leaders to the United States. The visits are still on ice. Comes Tet again, and again in February. This time it's 1967. The warring sides called an informal truce for the holiday. This time, too, Kosygin was away from home, visiting British Prime Minister Harold Wilson in London.

The two men discussed ways to find peace for Vietnam. Johnson had been pleading with North Vietnam to show some sign it wanted peace. So this raised an obvious question: Once Tet was over would Johnson continue the pause in the bombing which began with the start of Tet last week?

There was another question, "Unfortunately the only response we have had from the Hanoi government was to use the period (the Tet truce) for major resupply efforts of their troops in South Vietnam."

The garbage can was carried by two men wearing white smocks. They entered the store Wednesday, said "We're here to service the rest rooms" and asked a saleswoman for some wrapping paper. "I'd say the door to the fur vault was unguarded for about 30 seconds while she got the paper," said James Ludwig, store manager.

The loot included a $3,400 Russian sable jacket and two $2,600 mink coats.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vietnamese lunar new year — Tet, they call it — is becoming tet-for-tet, with some strange coincidences two years apart. Twice, just at the end of Tet, Viet Cong terrorists in South Vietnam attacked American military installations. Twice, after this happened, President Johnson hit back fast by ordering the bombing of North Vietnam. And twice, although not directly, Soviet Premier Alexei N. Kosygin was involved.

In 1965 the warring sides in Vietnam called an informal truce for the lunar holiday in February. As Tet neared its end the Viet Cong fired mortar shells into the American airbase at Pleiku, killing nine U.S. servicemen and wounding more than 100. That was on Feb. 7. That same day Johnson ordered retaliation: North Vietnam was bombed. And this, although it wasn't realized at the time, began the U.S. air war on the Communists in the north.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — At the start of ABC's dignified tour of Britain "Hall of Kings" Tuesday night, Joyce Carey was quoted as saying that if a visitor had but an hour for all of London, he would send him directly to Westminster Abbey.

Anyone in America who was interested could have spent an hour in the ancient abbey under the most comfortable of circumstances, seated in his own easy chair.

The special program was a lavish guided tour. We had James Mason as chief guide, full of large and small pieces of information and ready to quote prose and poetry at every stop beside a tomb or plaque.

From time to time, Siobhan McKenna appeared, like a ghost, to speak the words — mostly mournful — of Mary, Queen of Scots, Elizabeth Barrett Browning or Charlotte Bronte. Lynn Redgrave told, in Victoria's own words, of the young queen's emotions during her coronation.

The 900-year-old abbey is indeed a fascinating place to visit, certainly the most interesting mausoleum in the world. The color cameras lingered lovingly on the sculptured forms and faces of long-dead sovereigns and on the great names that came after them.

Perhaps there was a tendency to overdo some high-flown quotations from the major and minor poets, but there was room in which to squeeze passing mention of others, who were neither kings, heroes nor men and women of the arts and sciences yet found their final resting place inside the abbey. There was Queen Anne's laundress, the first Englishman to carry an umbrella and someone identified simply as "Long Meg."

It was a pleasant, low-key program with especially effective photography.

CBS executives insist that the fate of 17-year-old "What's My Line?" has not yet been determined because the network's fall schedule is still being put together.

However, if the program should be dropped by fall in favor of a western, as reported, it would probably mean that its companion program, "Candid Camera" would be canceled too, or moved to another spot.

CBS is considering pilots for but two Westerns, and both are an hour long. One is "Cimarron Strip," about a U.S. marshal and starring Stuart Whitman, and the other is "Dundee and the Culhane," about two roving San Francisco lawyers of the 1880s.

PAPER OF THE FUTURE CHAMPAIGN, ILL. (AP) — The metropolitan newspaper of the future may become more a news magazine than a media of record, a University of Illinois professor said.

Prof. Gene Graham, speaking before a faculty forum, said smaller, localized papers were beginning to serve people on an "intimate interest level" better than large city dailies.

He said the trend in American life away from "giantism" has begun to affect the role of newspapers.

"We have just passed through a trend to giantism, to nationalization of thought and more than a degree of conformity for which the mass media are in a great measure responsible," he said.

Sex Views Cost Coed Privacy

By WILL GRIMSLEY
MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) — Jan Llenke, the University of Minnesota coed who suggested that people should take the bride off sex and enjoy it, would like to slide back into peaceful anonymity.

She'd just as soon forget the whole thing, she told a reporter. "It's not that I am sorry for what I said — I believe this very strongly," added the attractive 19-year-old nursing school senior, "it's just that my comments have been taken out of context, sensationalized and misinterpreted."

"I've lost my privacy. I find it difficult to get back into the swing of my studies and school responsibilities."

What Miss Llenke said — which shook up this conservative Midwest area — was that old morality codes are out of date and, now that some contraceptives are 100 per cent safe, the sexual drive should not be suppressed.

Advocating premarital sexual relations as something natural, she said sex life is just a form of communication and shouldn't be regulated any more than dancing or shaking hands.

The willowy, 5-foot-10 Miss Llenke, who looks like the girl next door, has been chided in newspaper editorials, insulted by letters and telephone calls and harassed by male callers.

Friends describe Miss Llenke as a quiet, refined girl with a brilliant mind who — in their words — "is neither kooky nor showoffy."

Miss Llenke neither drinks nor smokes. She has one steady boyfriend, whom she dates only on weekends, usually going to the movies or playing tennis.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

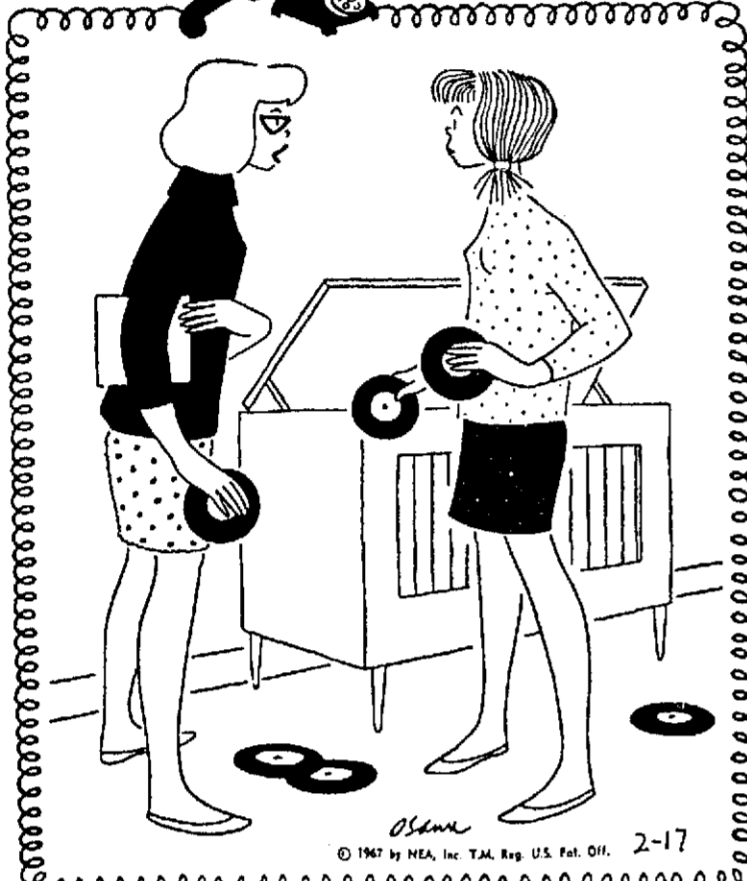

Over 130 million tons of pollutants are discharged into the air over the United States every year, says The World Almanac. The pollutants soil clothes, corrode metals, deface buildings and in general cause property damage estimated at about $11 billion a year. The two major sources of air pollution are transportation and manufacturing.

The best play with a particular card combination may depend on how many tricks you need.

South has a wealth of material for a three no-trump contract. At least, he is looking at 29 high card points. He also is looking at cards that are likely to take only nine tricks.

Of course, if everything goes well South will make a lot more tricks. He will win the first spade, cash his ace of clubs and lead a club to dummy for a finesse of the jack.

If the finesse works, he will cash dummy's king of clubs. Then, if clubs break, he will have four club tricks. He will also have time to go after the diamond suit and, if diamonds break 3-3, he will make three diamond tricks.

Unfortunately, this line of play is not going to work. East is going to place his queen of clubs on dummy's jack and lead back a spade. Later, clubs and diamonds won't break and, assuming that East and West defend correctly, South is going to make eight tricks and no more.

An alert South should be aware of this possibility and give up any play for four club tricks in order to give himself the best play for three club tricks.

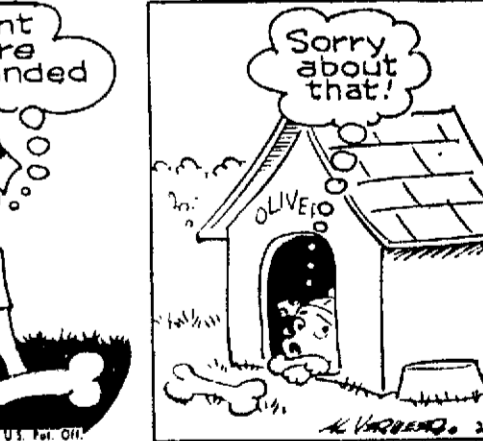

This best play starts with the lead of a club to dummy's king and a club back to the ace. This time the queen drops and dummy's jack of clubs is established. If the queen of clubs fails to drop, South still can play for three tricks in the suit. He simply leads a third club toward dummy. If West holds the queen of clubs, dummy's jack will be good. If East holds the queen of clubs and West follows suit, dummy will have a third club trick. The only losing case is if East started with four clubs to the queen and in that case no line of direct attack would work.

Courtney Leading at Tucson

TUCSON, Ariz. AP — Chuck Courtney went into Friday's second round of the $60,000 Tucson Open golf tournament one stroke behind Arnold Palmer while taking putting lessons along the way.

Courtney, who finished with a five-under-par 67 in the gathering darkness Thursday, says he owes his good showing to Bob Charles.

"I don't care if he three-putts every green," said Courtney, tour regular from La Jolla, Calif. "As far as I'm concerned he's the best putter on the tour."

Courtney, 26, playing in the same threesome as Charles, said he had been having trouble with his putting and watching Charles stroke the ball on the Green helped his game.

Lindgren Could Push Ron Clarke

By JACK STEVENSON

Associated Press Sports Writer SAN FRANCISCO AP — Gerry Lindgren could push Australia's Ron Clarke to a new world indoor two-mile record tonight or he could erase Clarke's record.

"Gerry is capable of breaking the record," admitted the Aussie who has practically rewritten the list of marks for aces of two miles and longer.

They'll duel in the 5th annual Golden Gate Invitational meet at the Cow Palace where the appearance this week of great miler Jim Grelle enhances the allure of the race.

Grelle has beaten Clarke at two miles outdoors although he's best known as a man with a tremendous kick in racing a mile.

The two-mile features a meet which has been caught in the midst of the latest squabbling between the AAU and the NCAA.

International Stars to Fight It Out

By RON RAROPORT

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK AP — A group of international stars will fight it out with some home-grown products tonight in a star-laden lineup at the New York Athletic Club Indoor Games.

No less than seven — and possibly eight — world and indoor record holders will compete in the meet, which has come out of the feud between the Amateur Athletic Union and the National Collegiate with its fields virtually unharmed.

Ralph Boston, world long jump champ, was to decide a few hours before the meet began whether his leg troubles had cleared up enough to allow him to compete.

Some of the foreign athletes making their season debut in the meet are Alvaro Mejia of Colombia and Bill Baillie of New Zealand in the two-mile and Ian Studd of New Zealand.

And no matter what the outcome of the AAU's suspension of some foreign athletes for competing in an unsanctioned meet here last Friday, most of the affected colleges will have teams in the meet.

Red Ruffing Finally Make Hall of Fame

By BEN CAIN
Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK AP — Charles Red Ruffing, the newest member of baseball's Hall of Fame advocates the automatic placing in the sport's shrine of all those who've played in the big leagues 20 or more years.

"You have to be doing something to play in the majors for 20 years," said the New York Yankee pitching great of the 1930's and 40's after being named to the Hall Thursday in a special run-off election.

"I'd like to see a rule like that and also that no one can be elected who does not have a lifetime batting average of at least .300 and, for pitchers, those who didn't win at least 200 games," Ruffing added.

Ruffing, now 61, won 273 big league games, including 231 with the Yankees for whom he pitched for 15 years. He was with the Boston Red Sox for the first seven years of his major league career and finished up with one season in 1947 with the Chicago White Sox.

Barnett Is Hero in Win for Knick

By ED SHUYLER JR.

Associated Press Sports Writer NEW YORK AP — He who hesitates is not always lost at least not if he has a good jump shot.

Dick Bennett got the ball with 35 seconds left and the score tied 116-116 Thursday night in a game between his New York Knicks and the St. Louis Hawks. He leaped into the air but hesitated before shooting.

"I saw someone cut but he got by me before I could pass to him, and Richie Guerin, St. Louis player-coach was reaching behind me," Barnett said.

So before he hit the floor, he pushed the ball toward the basket and it went through and the Knicks went on to a 121-120 victory.

The game was the nightcap of a National Basketball Association doubleheader at Madison Square Garden. Cincinnati beat Detroit 122-110 in the opener.

Cincinnati, Brown Take AFL Forefront

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. AP —

The city of Cincinnati and the name of Paul Brown came to the forefront in unofficial discussion among American Football League Club owners as they wrapped up four days of meet here Thursday.

Cincinnati appeared to have the inside track to become the league's tenth franchise. The name of the legendary former coach of the Cleveland Browns added luster to the most prominent of three solid groups in the Ohio metropolis which are bidding for the club.

The AFL owners voted Thursday to move toward immediate expansion following a meeting that President Milt Woodard said may have advanced by one year, to 1969, a complete merger with the National Football League.

The League voted Wednesday to bring its player pension plan up to the NFL level, removing the major stumbling block to player trading.

"We conveyed our feeling directly to Pete Rozelle pro football commissioner and the NFL owners will take it up next Monday at Honolulu," Woodard said.

He Tackles All Bank Robbers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Roger Hathoot played football for the University of New Mexico and keeps in shape by tackling bank robbers.

Hathoot, 31, operations officer for a branch bank, nabbed another bank robbery suspect Wednesday, his eighth in less than three years.

The 220-pound executive, alerted by a teller, chased the would-be robber from the bank and nailed him at the corner.

Survival Is Worth 40 Gs

Tom Weiskopf, the young pro who led the Bob Hope Classic after three rounds then petered out, never has won a tournament on the pro tour, but isn't discouraged. "You start out," he says, "playing to make the cut. (The halfway point where the highest scores are cut out of the action.) Otherwise, each week you've got to go out and qualify for the next tournament. It's hard to discipline yourself. It's hard to get out and hit balls, to practice when you're tired and playing badly."

"It's the easiest thing in the world to give up. You'd rather have a couple of beers or go back to a party." . . . They won't play any benefits for Weiskopf. He picked up more than $40,000 in prize money last year and Arnie Palmer still calls him "the best prospect on tour."

When Tom started out as a pro, on his own (without backers) in 1965, he wore unpressed khaki pants and wool sweaters. "You've got to get cashmere sweaters," the Hebert brothers, Lionel and Jay, advised him, as the first step to pro acceptance. Then Toney Penna, the MacGregor representative, said, "I'll give you a contract, and I'll dress you like a pro."

Everything 6-3 Tom has worn since is custom-made . . .

Biggest myth in baseball must be the importance of the 3-6-3 double play (first-to-second-to-first). With Joe Pepitone, one of the finest fielders in the game playing the bag, manager Ralph Houk figured out the Yankees had made just two of those double plays in four years, an argument he has used in the Mickey Mantle switch to the bag . . .

Frankie Frisch, the old Fordham Flash and constant critic of modern baseball, was cornered by Jim Piersall, the Angel zany, in a dugout. "You're not helping baseball very much with what you're saying about us," spouted Jimmy . . . "What's your batting average right now?" asked Frisch . . . "Oh," said Piersall, "about .181." . . . "You," said Frisch triumphantly, "are not doing much for the game either."

Mickey Mantle and Sandy Koufax must be using the same barber for their new downsweppt coiffures—razor cut, no doubt . . .

When Weeb Ewbank was the coach of the Baltimore Colts, he swapped George Shaw to New York, then sought a backup man for John Unitas. Weeb approached the Green Bay Packers, then in last place, and asked for Bart Starr, who had started out the '59 season as a third-stringer. He settled instead of Lamar McHan when coach Vince Lombardi balked. In return, the Packers got Fuzzy Thurston, a pillar at guard for the last seven years . . .

Incidentally, there's something to Bart Starr's thoughts of retirement. "I've played 11 years for Green Bay," he says, "and I plan definitely to go one or two more years. Beyond that, I don't know."

Between you'n' me, Jim Palmer, the young Oriole pitcher, considers Arizona home (though he has just bought a home in Baltimore) . . . but he isn't going to make his old neighbors any happier by confessing that Florida is a better place to train than Arizona (the Orioles think so, too) . . . because "it cools off too much at night on the desert" goes from 75 to 35."

Ralph Houk

Biggest myth in baseball must be the importance of the 3-6-3 double play (first-to-second-to-first). With Joe Pepitone, one of the finest fielders in the game playing the bag, manager Ralph Houk figured out the Yankees had made just two of those double plays in four years, an argument he has used in the Mickey Mantle switch to the bag . . .

Frankie Frisch, the old Fordham Flash and constant critic of modern baseball, was cornered by Jim Piersall, the Angel zany, in a dugout. "You're not helping baseball very much with what you're saying about us," spouted Jimmy . . . "What's your batting average right now?" asked Frisch . . . "Oh," said Piersall, "about .181." . . . "You," said Frisch triumphantly, "are not doing much for the game either."

Hope Girls Beat DeQueen Easily 66-34

By RALPH ROUNTON

Led by a devastating offense, the Hope Ladycats rolled into the semis of the District 7A West tournery by trouncing DeQueen's Leopardettes, 66-34 last night at Ashdown.

This victory put Hope one notch closer to the state tournament berth which is given to the winner of the district.

Having no trouble throughout the game, Hope jumped to a quick early lead and a good defensive game held DeQueen down as the Ladycats led 16-7 at the quarter. Domination by Hope continued in second period. Gall Hartsfield's 16 points led Hope into the half-time with a 36-17 margin.

Starting the second half with a 9 point spree, Hope again rolled up an impressive margin. Frequent substituting began, and things slowed down considerably. Hope still led 60-25 with only seven minutes left.

The tenacious defense headed by Kay Coleman, Nellie Churchwell and Donna Byers came through again and Hope took its 16th win against 6 defeats.

Gall Hartsfield had her finest night of the year with 32 points. Carol Anthony banded in 16, Kathryn Coleman 13, Vickie Reeves 4, and Debbie Powell 1. Gall also led in rebounds with 15. As a team Hope out rebounded DeQueen 70-27.

Tonight the girls meet highly rated Gurdon in a semifinal game at 9:35 p.m.

Chicago Cubs

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PITCHING—The wind in Chicago isn't quite as bad these days. Leo Durocher has turned realist. He doesn't have much of a pitching staff. Ken Holtzman, the rookie lefthander (11-16), showed promise last year. Ray Culp (7-4) wanted the Phillies to trade him. Trade him they did. Brings 5.03 ERA to Chicago. Ferguson Jenkins (6-8) had fair year, splitting time as starter and reliever. Curt Simmons (5-8) may have a few wins in aging left arm. The bullpen offers semblance of stability. Bob Hendley, Cal Koonce, Bill Hands pitched with consistency year ago. Rookie hopefuls Rich Nye, Dave Dowling, Charlie Hartenstein getting an opportunity they'll never see again. RATING—C.

INFIELD—Potent offensively, though Ernie Banks (.272), at first base, requires more rest these days. Lee Thomas a capable replacement. Second baseman Glenn Beckert (.287) and shortstop Don Kessinger (.243) improved in all departments last year. Ron Santo at third (.312, 30 HR, 94 RBI) helps carry club. He has few equals in either league. RATING—B.

OUTFIELD—Adolfo Phillips (.260), Byron Browne (.243) didn't please Leo with their defense last year. He blames it on inexperience. At least he hopes that was the reason. It's pleasure for Leo to look out to left field. Steady Billy Williams (.276, 29 HR, 91 RBI) is there. RATING—B—.

CATCHING—Randy Hundley considered league's best young catcher. Hit only .236 but had 19 HR, 63 RBI as a rookie. He also caught 149 games. Don Bryant, probable backup man, better prepare for summer of bullpen work. RATING—B—.

BENCH—Experienced pinchhitters in Lee Thomas, George Altman. Both, however, are lefty. Utilityman Ron Campbell for infield. Jim Stewart at home in infield or outfield but not much of a hitter. Good right-hand pinchhitter needed. RATING—C.

SUMMARY—A potentially powerful club. If it could only get some pitching, Chicago could give the National League trouble. Then the wind in Chicago would pick up again. PREDICTION—Soft, mild breezes this summer, 9TH.

Bruins Are Becoming a Nuisance

The last-place Boston Bruins, with nothing left to do but make nuisances of themselves, are making nuisances of themselves.

Lefebvre Is Assured He'll Be Well Paid

By MIKE RECHT

Associated Press Sports Writer Jim Lefebvre of the Los Angeles Dodgers made certain the will be well paid for whatever he does in 1967, although he is not sure whether he will be doing it.

The slugging 24-year-old infielder signed a contract Thursday that will bring him an estimated $30,000 for his third season in the major leagues.

But he only knows he will get plenty of chances to better his .274 batting average, 24 homers and 74 runs batted to 1966. What position he will be playing is a mystery.

The Rookie - of - the Year in Baseball league in 1965, divided duties between second and third base last season.

This season, with second baseman, Ron Hunt coming to the Dodgers, Manager Walter Alston again is thinking in terms of third base for Lefebvre. But second base still is a possibility, with Hunt moving to third, and Lefebvre has even been mentioned for first base.

The victory for the Bruins was only their 15th in 53 games and still left them eight points behind the fifth-place Red Wings, who are fighting for the final playoff spot.

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — How would voluntary service benefit the nation as a whole and each major institution in it?

Those who support the voluntary service plan say it would help provide a more relevant role for women in modern society. A national commitment to voluntary service might help women define a role for themselves in keeping both with their sex and with their desire for self-expression.

Voluntary service also might provide a productive channeling of youthful energies. Unemployment in the 19-21 age group runs over 2 1/2 times the national average. This could be reduced.

In this line, voluntary service could also help to reconcile the younger generation with their elders. Volunteers would raise money, lodging, board and practical assistance for other volunteers directly from their own parents, involving their families in the aspirations of the younger generation, according to those who back the idea.

Voluntary service might also help integrate the society. Young citizens of Watts and of Beverly Hills could end up working side by side in community development projects.

Both secondary schools and colleges should benefit. The influx of college graduate volunteers could alleviate the chronic shortage of teachers in secondary schools. Volunteers would bring a more personalized and involved atmosphere to the secondary school classroom.

Industry is taking more and more responsibility for development in the "independent sector." Expected industry support for voluntary service activity would further this trend.

Industry and professional groups might also find a solution to their critical recruitment problem through support for voluntary service. Though no volunteer would be bound to accept a position with a sponsoring firm upon completion of his voluntary tour, he might well do so.

Those who support the plan say voluntary service would help feed the ranks of leadership in government as it would industry and the professions. More important, however, it could help the government relinquish its strangle hold over the service sector of society.

Many people believe that voluntary groups are able to get people to help themselves while government agencies rarely are able to do so. The American Friends Service Committee notes, "Mistakes are more easily accepted and forgiven if they are made by voluntary agencies whose service motivation is clearly understood than if they are made by official government programs whose motives are often less clear." Under voluntary service, the alleged pork-barrel and welfare-dole aspects of the War on Poverty could be eliminated.

Voluntary service might also allow the armed forces a sufficient number of volunteers. More important, voluntary service motivation could provide the armed forces with men who choose to serve.

In higher education, voluntary service could extend the revolution toward action-oriented curricula, further the trend toward elimination of grades and classrooms, and help integrate the disciplines.

Many people feel that voluntary service itself would be regarded as a valuable part of a young person's education. Hopefully, colleges would no longer be filled with draft dodgers, or those who expect never to serve. No longer would a dropout be scorned.

Wars short of nuclear war in the future will probably be wars of insurrection, urban guerrilla tactics and countryside terrorism. They will be wars for claiming loyalties rather than properties. In this climate, volunteers trained in Peace Corps type activities might easily be as valuable to the national defense as soldiers trained in conventional combat techniques.

Universal military training could meet the challenge of this new warfare. All volunteers, regardless of their chosen specialty, could enroll for a course in service techniques which would include elementary self-protection, nonviolent strategy and counter-insurgency. So all citizens would be trained in some measure to prevent or, at least, help avert a threat other than that of missiles.

Voluntary service simultaneously could solve three serious national problems: 1) The inadequacy of the nation's defense to meet the demands of modern warfare; 2) The inequities of any form of conscription; 3) the "desire not to serve," which is costing the nation the loyalty of a whole generation of Americans.

Voluntary service will require many months, even years, to realize. But those who support it know that it cannot take place without the commitment to begin

Legislative Proposal Plans a Study of Vocational Education

A study was proposed in the 1953 session of the legislature to look at Vocational Education in Arkansas.

This study was to cover all phases of education. The results were a good indication that quality education was being given Arkansas residents. There were some observations as follows:

(1) There was adequate technical staff to teach quality education.

(2) A good job of teaching was being done.

(3) More technical education should be offered in Arkansas to students and adults.

(4) There should be more training after high school.

The result of the study was Act 327 of 1957. It called for Vocational Technical Schools to be built within the State. Several communities applied for the first school; however, the Pine Bluff Chamber of Commerce was successful in obtaining the first school. The State Board of Voc. Ed. selected the Pine Bluff site. The first classes began operation Sept. 21, 1959.

Since that time another study was made to determine the feasibility of adding additional Voc. Tech. School in the state. Three years later, in 1962, the Petit Jean Voc. Tech. School, of Morrilton was put into operation but offering different courses than that at Pine Bluff and to meet the needs of business, and industry. A new group of four schools were built and in operation in full by 1966. These schools are located at Ozark, Burrett, Searcy and Hope. Four additional schools will be in operation in the fall of 1967. These four schools are at El Dorado, Marked Tree, Forest City, and Harrison. Voc. Education funds have been used for West Arkansas Junior College, technical division and Phillip County, Community College, as well as two Voc. Tech. High Schools, Metropolitan High School in Little Rock, and Sequoia Voc. Tech. High School in Fayetteville.

There are other schools being considered for construction as Voc. Tech. High Schools at present. Brown Construction Company gave the site and facilities of the naval ammunition depot in Camden for a Technical Institute which will be in operation in 1967-68. This school will help to clear the gap between high school and the highly technical aspect of life in Arkansas.

This has been a success story of vocational technical schools in Arkansas, from a small beginning to six schools. Service has been rendered to all groups of people desiring vocational education.

Terrorists Hit in Guatemala

GUATEMALA (AP) — Lt. Col. Eduardo Figueroa, deputy chief of the Guatemalan air force, was waiting in his car for his children to leave school.

Authorities said an automobile drove slowly by, shots rang out and Figueroa slumped in his seat. Police blamed the terrorist National Liberation Army, which has carried out murders, kidnappings for ransom and bombings.

"It goes 'shang' when you run your hand down it," Peggy says. "Then I found out it cost $400, which is pretty expensive for a shang. So I didn't buy it."

Never no more will Gower Champion dance. It is final, definite, unequivocal.

"I was offered a spot on the Academy Award show," Gower says. "But there is nothing sadder than an ex-dancer trying to perform when he's not in training. I turned them down."

"I'd like to do a comedy with my wife (Michelle Lee). But I wouldn't want us to work together in a drama. I'm afraid of what that might do to our marriage." —James Farentino.

operation with the governor. Hurst, like Heern, has supported the governor throughout the session, but even Jones, a frequent critic of the administration, was willing to go along with him—to a point.

"As long as you're governor of the people, I'm going to support you," Jones said. "But when you start being a governor for the Republican Party, I'm going to oppose you — hard!"

Sen. John F. (Mutt) Gibson Sr. of Dermott asked whether the governor intended to start conferring with the senators before he made appointments instead of after.

"You have departed from precedent yourselves," Rockefeller reminded him, referring to the Senate's action last Friday when it bypassed the governor and named its own appointees to the state Public Service Commission and the board of Henderson State College at Arkadelphia.

The governor has 20 days in which to fill a vacancy on a state board and commission, and the Senate has been counting the days as each vacancy has occurred. That's how it managed to make the appointments last Friday.

If that practice stops, the governor told the delegation, he will be happy to confer with the Senate on any appointment, including those that don't require Senate confirmation. It was the lack of time, he said, that had kept him from conferring with them previously.

He said he felt he had the right to appoint members of his own party, but that as far as he was concerned, qualifications were more important than party affiliations.

"As soon as you get this time element off my back, I will submit three names to you and say, 'My preference is so-and-so; are you comfortable with him?'" Rockefeller said.

Sen. Clifton Wade of Fayetteville said that in the past, former Gov. Orval Faubus had called him in and said, "Pick me out a man who is your friend and my friend and I'll appoint him."

That, said Rockefeller, was a Democratic governor talking to a Democratic senator about a Democratic appointee.

"I probably catch more hell from Republicans than I do from you Democrats because I don't appoint more Republicans," Rockefeller said.

On the question of patronage, the governor said that his county screening committees had discovered about a dozen instances in which state employees had never shown up for work.

"They don't even show up for their pay checks," Rockefeller said. "They have them mailed to them."

The governor said these jobs have been eliminated, along with 150 or 200 more than weren't needed.

Asked about instances in which he had permitted his screening committees to dismiss employees who were only three or four months away from retirement, Rockefeller said only that he was "constantly amazed at the number of state employees who are within six months of retirement."

Incidents such as those have led to much of the governor's trouble with the Senate. It was the dismissal of employees in Crittenden and Poinsett counties, for instance, that brought about his opposition from Sens. W. K. (Bill) Ingram of West Memphis and Fred Stafford of Turning to another subject, the governor said laughingly that he didn't understand why some of the legislators had waited "all of these years" to sponsor reform bills that would hamper executive responsibilities.

"I'm not against change, but some change at the moment appears directed at Win Rockefeller and the Republican Party," he said.

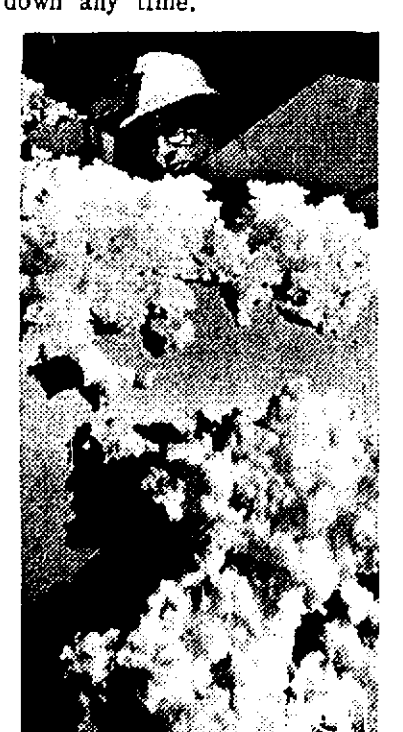

He also wondered why, if the bills were honestly motivated, the senators hadn't come to talk with him about them.

"It's very difficult, if you're human, not to take offense if you pick it up from the press or after the fact," he said.

Most of the meeting was spent discussing budget bills, over which there has been no conflict.

Others taking part in the conference were Lt. Gov. Maurice Britt and Sens. Joe Lee Anderson of Helena, Olen Hendrix of Prescott and Dan White of Fort Smith.

The meeting ended on a cordial note, with the governor inviting the senators to drop in any time and the senators asking the governor to invite them down any time.

Too Many Friends for Easy Peace

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's a war where everybody has too many friends to make peace easy, which makes it one of the most mixed-up wars imaginable.

The Communist North Vietnamese have to worry about their allies in South Vietnam, the Viet Cong, before they start talking peace with the United States.

They couldn't just walk out on their Viet Cong friends, even if they wanted to, and they have shown no sign of wanting to. The world is watching.

That kind of sell-out would put too much of a dent in the prestige and reliability of Communists everywhere.

And the Viet Cong, even if they wanted to, couldn't think of quitting without some understanding with North Vietnam. They are deeply obligated now.

Then there are the Soviets and the Red Chinese for North Vietnam to worry about. Both have backed North Vietnam with words and supplies.

Not only now, but after the war, North Vietnam will need help from one or both. So it must think twice before doing anything, like making peace, which might mean a break with its two big friends.

At the same time North Vietnam can't afford to be too much the toady of the Soviet Union and China if it wishes to retain some independence of its own.

The United States is in even worse shape with friends and foes. It says it is fighting this war to preserve the independence of South Vietnam.

Therefore, with the world watching, even if it wanted to the United States couldn't afford a peace which left South Vietnam at the mercy of its enemies, now or in the future.

The United States couldn't think of a walkout or a sellout on South Vietnam and still retain the trust of the other Southeast Asia nations which may look on this country as its protector against Communist takeovers.

And since the United States also says it is fighting this war in the interest of national security, it can hardly settle for a poor peace.)

The United States is truly in a box. It could wipe out North Vietnam in nothing flat if it wanted to go all-out with traditional or nuclear bombing.

But such treatment of a small, backward country like North Vietnam would horrify the world, including American friends and allies.

The United States would pay a deadly price in lost respect. Yet, it is paying a deadly price in lost American lives for showing such restraint.

It is fighting a land war, which is the only kind the Viet Cong and North Vietnam can fight. They'd be no contest in an all-out air war.

While just using traditional bombing on North Vietnamese military targets, the United States has to be careful not to bomb Red China accidentally.

That might bring the Chinese into the struggle on the side of their North Vietnamese friends, which would be the biggest break for the north so far.

In turn, the Chinese have to be careful about helping their North Vietnamese friends with Chinese "volunteers." If that happened, involving China more directly with the United States, no one could predict the outcome.

Then there's the American-Soviet problem. Both sides, no doubt, would like closer relations. But the Soviets have to worry about losing face in the Communist world if they get too cozy with a country fighting a Communist state.

In the middle of this confusion, the mixed-up Chinese probably don't know what they'll be doing tomorrow or next week to themselves, to the Soviet Union, or about Vietnam.

And the United States and North Vietnam, in the very center of all this chaos, keep shouting peace without being able to hear each other.

El Dorado
Lawmaker

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sen. W. D. (Bill) Moore Jr. of El Dorado, using sarcasm to hone his words to razor sharpness, sliced into the Rockefeller Administration Thursday in a speech before the Arkansas Senate.

Moore quoted from a story in a Hot Springs newspaper concerning Bob Scott, Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's aide for prison and parole affairs, and took Scott to task for remarks about his investigation of the situation at Tucker Prison Farm.

"He's already found in just a few short days that we have people out there who will exaggerate and even tell outright untruths," Moore said. "I realize that he only has 10 more months in which to do it, but I believe that before the year is out he will have sharpened his investigative skills enough to discover that there are criminals out there. By then, he will be on an equal with any junior high school boy."

Moore, a frequent critic of the administration, said it seemed to him that its members tended to believe everything the Tucker prisoners told the.

"How ridiculous can you get?" Moore asked.

He quoted the newspaper story as saying that Scott had said he had found no tangible evidence of a prisoner being beaten, although he had talked to one man who had told him that his teeth had been knocked out, and that the man's teeth obviously were out.

cently after suffering a ruptured appendix. Bailey had served 10 years on death row.

Rose said he was concerned mostly with the food and crowded conditions at Cummins, where he said he was convinced that more than 50 per cent of the inmates of the Negro barracks were involved in homosexual acts.

At Tucker, he said, young inmates were forced into unnatural sex acts out of fear of "head knocking" and that some of the trustys were invested with too much power. He said that while the food at Tucker was "much better" than at Cummins, he could find little justification in the quality of the meat.

Taylor said the noon meal from Jan. 1 through Jan. 28 consisted of an alternation of "beans, watery rice and cornbread" and "peas, watery rice and cornbread." The cornbread was not "fit to eat," he said.

Taylor said he confirmed what the prisoners had told him about receiving only three cups of milk a week although menus indicated they were receiving milk for breakfast and supper each day.

Taylor said the Cummins commissary store for inmates had accumulated $121,282 that is on deposit without interest at a Pine Bluff bank and that it would appear these funds were adequate to build recreational facilities.

He said, however, that commissary funds had been used to buy items such as handcuffs, food for prisoners, a new car costing $3,570 and planting seed that he felt should be paid from penitentiary funds.

Several House members were skeptical on individual reports because much of the observations were based on statements by prisoners. Rose said he confirmed many of the statements of convicts.

Several legislators said they hadn't found the food so bad when they visited and ate with prisoners at both farms, but Taylor said that "three types of food" are sometimes served at the same time.

Rep. W. H. Thompson of Marked Tree asked Taylor why "all of a sudden we run into a deplorable prison system." He asked if the present prison controversy could be caused by "a political motive."

Taylor said he thought certain charges should be made in the supervision of guns. He said trustys kept ammunition in their barracks and he saw some of them at Tucker using it for

He said that as a result of his investigation he was preparing a bill authorizing the attorney general to investigate action for crimes committed on state property throughout the state.

Entry Requirements, Regulations at Red River Tech School

The Red River Vocational - Technical School is operated by the State Board for Vocational Education to help meet the need for field and industrial technicians in the economic development of Arkansas.

The school is open to people from all parts of the State who are over sixteen years of age and are interested in the occupations taught.

Day Preparatory Classes meet six hours a day, Monday through Friday, or 30 hours per week. Hours are from 9:00 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Buses run daily from Murfreesboro, Horatio, Magnolia and Arkadelphia.

The Administrative Staff assists students in the selection of course, locating suitable living quarters, part-time jobs, and other personal problems.

Eligible Students may attend under the G.I. Bill; as Rehabilitation clients; as well as recipients of loans from Rural Endowment Funds; ER&T and MDTA; and Work Education & Training Program.

A Limited Number of Scholarships are available to qualifying high school graduates.

Extension Classes are being conducted the year round and may be organized where there is a need to give refresher courses and related instruction to upgrade and up-date persons already employed.

Prior To Enrollment - Red River Vocational - Technical School must be furnished with:

- (1) Transcript of school record.
- (2) R.R.V.T.S. Application
- (3) General Aptitude Test Battery (which may be obtained at any Employment Security Division Office in Arkansas.)
- (4) Fees for first quarter (12 weeks) $15.00.

ENROLLMENT

Four quarters of twelve five-day weeks constitute a school term. Students are enrolled in the first two weeks of each quarter as shown on the calendar on the back of this handbook. Those who desire to enroll at other dates must do so under special arrangements with the school officials. Standardized tests will be given to students when they are considered necessary to making wise choices of courses.

SCHEDULE OF CLASSES

9:00 a.m. - 12:00 noon daily
12:30 p.m. - 3:30 p.m. daily
7:00 p.m. - 10:00 p.m. night

CLASS ATTENDANCE

Day classes will be in session six hours per day on a five-day week basis. Regular, prompt attendance in all classes is compulsory. Class rolls will be checked at the beginning of each class. Tardiness from class is excusable in dire emergency cases. Students are to be in class prior to the time specified to begin. Excessive unexcused tardies constitute sufficient grounds for a student's attendance to be terminated. Students may be excused from class under the following conditions:

Illness or injury to himself or serious illness or death in his immediate family, or others. Other conditions may constitute excused absences and the student should notify his instructor prior to being absent. Students are expected to attend classes according to the pre-arranged schedule. No class can be changed without permission of the assistant director. At any time a student is absent for three consecutive class days and fails to notify his instructor or Director of Instructions of his illness, or of death in his family, the student's training will be interrupted as of the last day he attended class.

No more than ten days excused absences will be accumulated during the school year. Not more than three of these may fall in any quarter. Excuses for absences must be presented to the teacher upon student's return to class. Failure to do so will cause the absence to be counted as unexcused.

WITHDRAWALS & RE-ENTRIES Check-out Procedure:

A student withdrawing from training must report to his instructor and the assistant director in order that proper steps may be taken toward interruption of training. When a student withdraws from training due to hardship or illness, he may re-enter.

Any student who has been dismissed for unsatisfactory conduct, excessive absences or for unsatisfactory progress, may re-enter at the beginning of the following term for a probationary period of six weeks. Re-entrance will be permitted when a student requests to the assistant director permission for withdrawal and is granted that permission.

CREDIT & PREVIOUS TRAINING

The Red River Vocational - Technical School does not give credit that may be used toward graduation from high school or for college degrees. Students who desire to attend for the purpose of receiving such credit for other schools or any other agency will not be accepted.

Credit for previous training in similar schools will be granted on receipt of a transcript listing the units of the course of study in which the enrollee has done satisfactory work.

PROGRESS & COURSE SELECTION

No student will be permitted to enroll in more than one course at a time. Evaluation of the progress of the student will be made quarterly, and, if his work is found to be unsatisfactory, he will be called in for counseling. After counseling with the assistant director, another six weeks period with improvement may be granted or the student may be advised to change to a course more agreeable to his aptitude and interest.

If at the end of his trial period satisfactory progress is still not evident, the student will be terminated. Any student who desires a change of course should first discuss it with his instructor, then with the assistant director.

CONDUCT & DISCIPLINARY STANDARDS

The Red River Vocational - Technical School has a genuine concern for the integrity of all students enrolled. Students are expected to conduct themselves as ladies and gentlemen.

The following rules apply equally to all students enrolled in the school:

- (1) Each student is held responsible for information published through notices and an-

Heavy equipment students enroll every five months. Enrollment dates are announced. Students electing office practices, welding, machine shop and diesel and heavy truck mechanics may enroll at any time if space is available. Practical nursing and forestry may enroll in September only.

Instructors are competent to teach in their field of technology and all have had training for vocational training. Instruction is geared to the latest methods used in production, installation, maintenance and repair.

All equipment and training aids are of industrial grade, modern design, and highest quality. Instruction includes theory and technical information necessary for progress in the occupation selected and applied to practical work in the shops and classrooms. Shops are arranged to provide maximum safety to the student. Safety instruction is an integral part of each course.

Boy Bowled and Emperor Grinned

NEW YORK (AP)—The boy bowed and the emperor grinned. So did John V. Lindsay Jr., the mayor's youngest child, when he met Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia.

Their encounter occurred Wednesday as the emperor arrived at the mayor's residence for tea.

Summoned by his mother from behind a door where he had been peeking at the proceedings, young John bowed formally and shook the emperor's hand.

"How old are you?" Inquired the emperor.

"Six and a half," John replied.

The 74-year-old emperor grinned broadly.

Obliged Prince

Annie Oakley, famous U.S. markswoman, once obliged Crown Prince Wilhelm, who later became Kaiser Wilhelm II, by shooting a cigarette out of his mouth at 30 paces while Buffalo Bill's wild west show played in Berlin.

Grant confirmed the action Wednesday night. They were married in 1962.

TOM TIEDE IN VIETNAM

By TOM TIEDE

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

KONTUM, Vietnam—(NEA)—It may sound silly but the men of the 101st Airborne Division are sitting around the jungle here, swatting mosquitoes, snapping leeches and freezing up to their eyeballs.

Granted the country is tropical. Nevertheless, it's c-c-cold here. And the GIs are unprepared for it since Army supply people just don't send overcoats to rice paddy zones.

Actually, the highlands of Vietnam are annually chilly about this time. Unlike the sea level regions which swell year round, the mountains here rise up to 9,000 feet and normally experience from two to three months of shivering every winter.

"But," chatters one GI, "this year it's ridiculous."

It is that all right. Weather station records at Kontum (elevation 3,000 feet) list this year's low at 50 degrees, but goose-pimply combat troopers swear it's nearer freezing on the nearby peaks.

One soldier, in fact, recently reported to an aid station rubbing his feet violently and insisting he had frost bite.

"It can't be," a medic said.

"It is," the GI countered.

"Let's see."

Employers Are Cooperative With School

R. D. (Dick) Moore, business manager of the school.

"Well?"

"Nothing."

"But my feet are killing me."

"I suggest," the medic said, "you get larger boots."

But even though frostbite is impossible, dozens of other illnesses have resulted from the bitter weather. Frequent colds have broken out and a few have been diagnosed as pneumonia.

The temperature alone, perhaps, is not severe enough to cause much concern. But coupled with rains and the endless winds which whip through the upland valleys, soldiers are suffering mightily.

The men are still dressed for 100 degrees.

"It's like wearing nothing," says one.

"I need longjohns," says another.

"Brrrrr," adds a third.

Warmer times, however, are not in the immediate offing. Most men have been issued thin wool sweaters but nothing else is available. Some of the line troops here didn't even bring field jackets

Employers in Southwest Arkansas have been very cooperative with the Red River Vocational Technical School students in providing part time and full time jobs.

Students go to school full time from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., and hold down a full time job, occasionally. At least 2 students have had regular full time jobs since the opening of school September 26. These students are in related occupations to the training in which they are taking.

Several Hope employers have made after school work available to the students and some students work before school as well as after school. The school employs office personnel and maintenance, and janitorial personnel for the operation and maintenance of the school. Work study students and extra help students are employed in this category. The work study students can only work 12 hours per week. If they live within a reasonable commuting distance of the school, or 15 hours per week if they reside out-side the reasonable commuting distance.

Other students are employed as extra help and are available to the school any hour the school is not in session. The students have done most of the ground and maintenance work at the school. It is anticipated that more students will be participating in work experience programs in the future because employers expect to hire people who have had some work experience.

Yet, with it all, the weather is not entirely cursed. It's an ill wind that blows nobody well. And the intelligence report is that fighting has slackened off because the thinly draped enemy has beat it down country for warmer climes.

Then, too, there is the incident of the paratrooper who indirectly owes his life to the dipping temperatures. He, a sergeant, was with a company on a search-and-clear mission at the time.

They were pushing across the side of a rain-swept mountain when the order was given to halt for the night. Then men sagged wearily to the mud and pulled their insufficient wraps close around their necks.

The sergeant sat down on a log. He took a drink from his canteen, lit a soggy cigarette and made nasty comments about the eternal wind.

He sat there 10 minutes. Then he felt something. He got up and looked around.

He was sitting on a poisonous snake.

The snake, a deadly cane viper, would have surely bitten the soldier under normal conditions. But in the cold, the reptile was too sluggish to move for the kill.

The sergeant's mouth dropped open. He picked up a knife and brought the blade down hard on the viper.

Since then, temperatures here haven't improved at all. And everybody is clustering up in small bunches to rub their hands, flap their arms and grumble about the sopping rain and the 40-mile-an-hour winds.

Everybody but the sergeant, of course.

He thinks the weather's g-g-great.

Siberia's Lake Baykal is the world's deepest lake reaching a depth of 5,315 feet.

FIVE STEPS TO REDUCE THE RISK OF HEART ATTACK

By M. M. MARVIN, M.D.
Past President,
American Heart Association
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

If you refuse to believe what your doctor has to say on the perils of obesity, then your next best bet is to ask your insurance agent. Those moderately overweight should be prepared to pay an extra premium of about 20 per cent. If you are excessively fat, you probably won't get any insurance at all.

The disquieting fact is that the middle-aged man who is 30 per cent overweight has, for example, twice the risk of heart attack as that of his normally weighted friends of the same age. The combination of obesity with high blood pressure produces a risk about four times that of normal. Obesity also means greater likelihood of high blood pressure, elevated blood cholesterol or diabetes.

It follows that if you are seriously interested in reducing your risk of heart attack, there is no better place to begin than by shedding the excess body weight with which you may be burdened. Any dieting you undertake should be under the supervision of your physician. Let me also emphasize that obesity is but one of the high-risk factors associated with heart attacks. All of them deserve your attention.

Like most doctors, I have encountered many hundreds of patients who have been overweight by amounts ranging from 10 pounds to 150 pounds. For many years I have tried to help these people to reduce, utilizing all the persuasiveness, knowledge, patience and encouragement available to me. There have been many failures. But some of my patients actually have been triumphant, even though greatly overweight for many years.

Now it is very easy, but not especially illuminating or helpful, to say that a person gains weight because he eats more food than his body requires. Authorities have been in agreement on that statement for years. But it is misleading in many instances to say that the fundamental cause of overweight is eating too much.

There is complete agreement that the physiological reason for an increase in body fat is eating more calories than the body will use as fuel. There are five main factors which condition the extent to which the build-up of fat occurs—age, size of body, sex, amount and kind of physical activity and type of food.

Reduced to simplest terms, however, it can be said that the person who regularly eats more food than his body requires will gain weight, while one who eats less than his body requires will lose weight.

It is also important to remember that caloric needs of the body decrease slowly but steadily as one grows older. Consequently, if a person eats the same number of calories and does the same amount of exercise year after year, his weight will increase slowly.

What can be done? My suggestion is that the individual start by dismissing many of the age-old misconceptions surrounding obesity. Put aside the idea that obesity is inherited and nothing can be done about it. Drop the false ideas that it is a natural part of growing older, that it results from a disturbance of the endocrine glands, and that keep weight down. Those who really wish to reduce their weight should keep these basic facts in mind: 1. The food provides less energy than the body needs. It will use as its fuel the fat stored on the body.

2. Ideally, the calories supplied by food each day should be less than the body requires. If this is impossible, the weekly total should be less. Eat less while keeping exercise constant, or eat the same amount while exercising more.

3. It is not necessary or even desirable to lose weight rapidly; any amount from a half-pound to two pounds a week is satisfactory.

4. "Crash diets" should be avoided, except possibly to lose three or four pounds.

5. Persistence — rigid and unwavering — is the master word.

Are you still with me? If so, see your doctor and map out a program which will enable you either to maintain normal weight or to bring your weight down to normal. You'll be happier and healthier. You'll feel better. And the chances are that you'll live a lot longer.

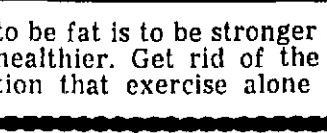

The fiddler crab is so-called from the position in which the male often holds its enlarged claw.

No Accounting by CIA for Money Spent

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON (AP) — Multimillion dollar subsidy payments by the Central Intelligence Agency can escape notice for years — perhaps forever — because CIA makes no public accounting.

Only a handful of people inside or outside the huge spy agency knows how much CIA spends or what it spends it for. So far as the federal budget is concerned, CIA seems scarcely to exist. The bulky and infinitely detailed budget volumes don't mention it at all, except when CIA erects a building. Then the construction cost is given, and no more.

CIA's payroll and payments are concealed in the budgets of other agencies — primarily that of the Defense Department, where hundreds of millions here or there are not too visible.

CIA's payments — covering such subsidies as the controversial ones for the National Student Association and other youth groups — look just like any other checks issued by the United States treasury. No agency name is mentioned.

In the youth group's case, the checks went to foundations as intermediaries. The foundations paid the NSA and other organizations.

Among the thousands of federal grants, loans and contract payments ordered to colleges, foundations and educational organizations by federal agencies, those relayed to NSA by the CIA were unlikely to attract attention even though made regularly for more than a decade.

And in government or Congress, payments marked "education" or "student exchange" or any similarly bland label would be unlikely to provoke questions.

A budget bureau spokesman noted that CIA goes through almost exactly the same process as any other agency in presenting, defending and justifying its annual budget request. There are the same conferences with Budget Bureau officials, the same haggling and cutting. After the carefully masked items are inserted in the President's budget message to Congress there are hearings before appropriations subcommittees of the Senate and House.

But there is one great difference — extreme secrecy. Strictest security is preserved every step of the way. Some appropriations hearings on CIA's budget reportedly have been held in CIA's great concrete headquarters at Langley, Va.

In the Budget Bureau itself — one of the few agencies in town that is considered leakproof — special precautions are taken when the bureau's liaison man is meeting with CIA officials.

Said a bureau spokesman: "Come to think of it, I don't believe I even know who our CIA liaison man is."

Life In Arkansas

The miniskirt may be the current fashion rage but a female bootlegger in the Magnolia area goes in for slightly longer dresses.

According to Glen Hickman of the Magnolia Banner News the woman found a use for the less chic styles — They cover her "bootlegger bloomers."

The woman was wearing a full dress and coat when she was arrested by Magnolia Police recently. Magnolia Police Chief J. W. Cleaver said the woman "kinked all over" when she got out of the patrol car.

A woman was called in to search the suspect and the attire was revealed.

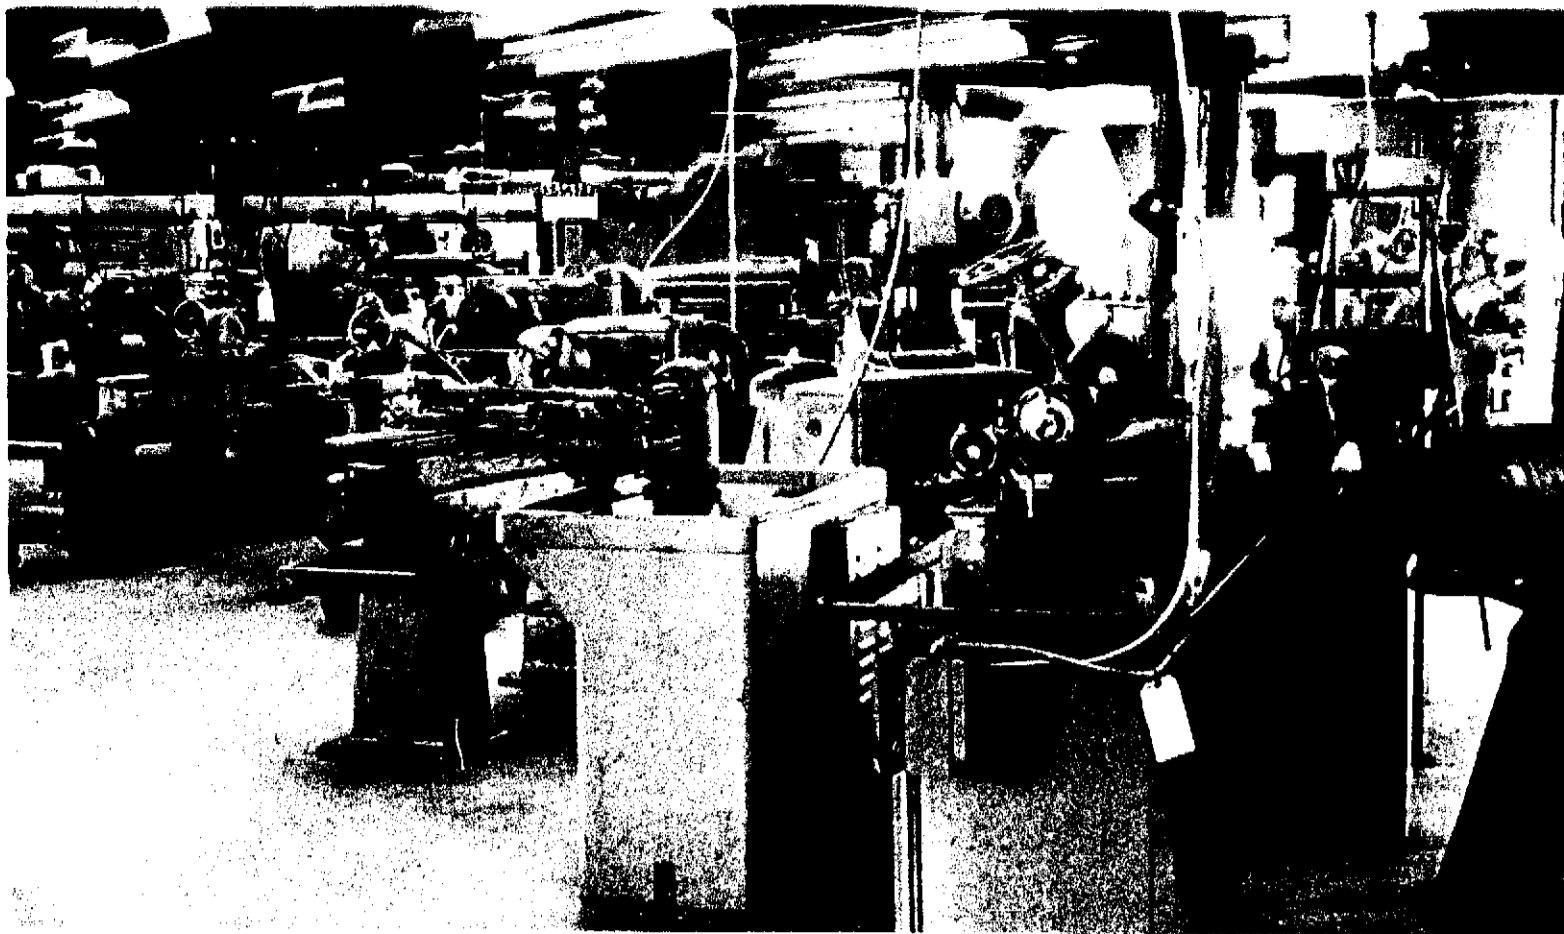

The "bloomers" were described as a pair of blue denim overalls with the legs cut out and pockets sewn around the bottom of the outside.

Cleaver said the garment had 16 pockets, in which about 20 bottles could be carried.

"I've never seen anything like that," Cleaver said. "That's something like they used back during prohibition days."

The woman was charged with possession of an illegal amount of intoxicants in a dry county and possession for sale. She was

Winter a Great Time of Year to Brush Up on Your Double-talk

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Winter is a great time to brush up on your double-talk.

There is also no other season of the year in which it is more greatly needed.

People's nerves get edgy during the long cold sameness. Just as snow cloaks and softens the raw and barren landscape of nature, double-talk helps camouflage the monotony of most conversation in winter.

For the guidance of the beg-

A bill which would make the state of Arkansas a bird sanctuary was amended slightly last week. One amendment removes the protection afforded sparrows and pigeons.

Another amendment protects Birmingham Killer Pigeons, birds that are used by magicians. Simply an indication of the strength of the magician's lobby.

An automobile accident in Texarkana recently brought residents of the area where the accident occurred pouring from their homes. Most were attired in pajamas. They inspected the wreck and watched police haul the driver off. Most of the spectators stood and chatted a while before returning to their homes.

One woman said the next day: "Why, I saw neighbors I hadn't seen in years at that pajama party last night."

Geological surveys say that some 80 per cent of all earthquakes occur in the so-called "Ring of Fire" surrounding the Pacific Ocean, following in a general way the border between continents and oceans.

inner, here are a few typical examples of helpful double-talk — followed by their literal meaning:

"So what if you did track a little slush in on my new rug. That's hardly a crime." — But if it only were, I'd see that you were immediately hanged.

"The doctor says this bronchitis may hold on for weeks and weeks unless I do something about." — So, my dear cheap-skate husband, why don't you ante up the money for a quick flight to Florida?

"That wasn't fair, Reginald! You hit me with a snowball when I wasn't looking." — What's the matter with this nut? Won't he ever grow up!

"Be sure and wear your over-shoes, dear. I don't want you to catch your death of cold." — Considering how little insurance you'd leave, my job is to keep you alive.

"Of course, Jim, we'll be glad to keep your tropical fish while you and your wife are down in Acapulco." — I'll fish through a hole in the ice here and use them for bait.

"The weather is so bad I don't think I'll buy one of those new miniskirts." — With the legs I've got, I wouldn't wear one if I lived in Tahiti.

"I'll have to walk to the station this morning, Alice. There isn't time for me to clear off the driveway." — Which means, my plump pigeon, that if you want to use the car you'll have to dig it out yourself. The exercise will do you good.

"I'm glad the schools are closing tomorrow. You can't expect children to freeze themselves to death just to get an education." — Oh, boy, that means I won't have to spend the evening helping the kids do their homework.

"Gee, Jack, I'm afraid I'll have to skip the poker game at your house tonight. My buggy is froze up solid." — Maybe by next week I can pay you what I lost last week.

"Of course, I love you, Samantha. But whoever heard of getting married in February? Let's pick a day in June." — But not in this century — maybe the next one.

Tech School Located on Sixty Acres

The Red River Vocational Technical School is located on a beautiful sixty acre wooded tract near the south city limits of Hope, Arkansas on Highway 29.

It contains three modern buildings. Three shop courses (welding, diesel and heavy truck mechanics, machine shop and plant maintenance) are operated in the south building containing 11,000 square feet.

The courses in forestry, office practices, practical nursing, the student center and the administrative offices are located in the north building which is air-conditioned.

The forestry department has approximately 1,400 square feet.

The practical nursing department has approximately 2,400 square feet and the three office practice rooms have approximately 2,100 square feet.

The heavy equipment operation is located in the west building of 3,500 square feet which contains a classroom, storage room and a covered enclosure.

All buildings are of modern design with functional driveways and entrances.

Election to Complicate Dutch Rule

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
AMSTERDAM, Netherlands (AP) — Losses by the Netherlands' two biggest political parties and gains by small parties in parliamentary elections

Wednesday are expected to complicate the task of forming a new Dutch government.

Queen Juliana was to begin conferences with party leaders today or Friday to find a successor to Premier Jelle Zijlstra of the Protestant Antirevolutionary party. He had headed a caretaker government since a Catholic-Labor coalition resigned last October after a census vote on fiscal policy.

The Catholic People's party, middle-of-the-road leader of all Holland's postwar coalitions, won 42 seats, a loss of eight. The Labor party won 37 seats, a loss of seven.

Eleven of the 23 parties placed deputies in the 150-member lower house of Parliament. The biggest gain was made by the four-month-old Democrats 1966 party, which advocates reform of the nation's proportional representation electoral system. It won seven seats in its first campaign.

Fire Destroys Alaska's Famed Saloon

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — The Palace Saloon and Cafe, a relic of gold rush days which had been restored for the Alaska 67 centennial opening in May, has been destroyed by fire.

Firemen prevented the flames from spreading Wednesday to other buildings on the exposition site.

The saloon and cafe were in a building erected during the early days of Fairbanks and contained a bar flown here last fall from Flat, Alaska. Before it was at Flat, the bar had been at Iditarod, site of the gold rush of 1908.

A Flying Version of Huge Cave

By CORKY LAMM
Indianapolis News Reporter
SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — This isn't really an airplane. It's a flying version of Mammoth Cave.

Yet within four years this whale-like flying machine will be hurtling from Los Angeles to New York in four hours carrying 362 passengers — and their luggage—in its cavernous belly. It could carry as many as 490 passengers in economy-class seats, but nobody seems to want that at present.

The plane is the 625 mile per hour Boeing 747 and the first models are scheduled for delivery to Pan American World Airways for international runs in just two years.

Whatever flying was like before, it will never be the same again.

Picture this:

A spiral staircase leads from the main cabin to a luxury lounge on the second deck. The seats — perhaps nine abreast — are divided by two separate aisles. Windows are bigger than present jet passenger plane windows, easily big enough to step through. There are as many as 11 lavatories. The ceiling is comfortably above present heights.

And heaven knows how many stewardesses it will take — but it ought to be enough for a chorus line at the Latin Quarter, if not the Radio City Music Hall.

It is so big that the wings and tail assembly for the mockup model could not be attached to the fuselage. The tail — 63 feet high—would have gone through the roof of the plant, and the wings—almost 196 feet in span—through the walls. It might have been simpler just to put the tail and wings on the building itself.

"They're sawing it (the fuselage) up in sections now," explained a spokesman for Boeing. "And then they'll truck it over to the new Everett, Wash., plant, where the 747 will be made."

It will double or triple almost anything today's big jets can do, except speed.

Wants CIA Probed by Senate Too

By HARRY KELLY
WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, warning against Uncle Sam becoming big brother, urged today that the Senate as well as the White House look into the Central Intelligence Agency's cloak and gown operations among students.

"It's a move toward big brotherism if we get the government into everything," said Mansfield, a former Montana professor. He called the CIA's secret subsidy of the National Student Association "most unfortunate."

As signs of congressional concern increased, President Johnson stepped directly into the CIA-student controversy, ordering a careful review of any government activities that might endanger integrity of U.S. educational groups.

He gave the mission to Undersecretary of State Nicholas Katzenbach, former law professor and ex-attorney general.

Katzenbach announced Wednesday that the President also directed key officials — including CIA Director Richard Helms — to spell out a policy to guide federal agencies "in their relationship to the international activities of American education organizations."

Johnson acted one day after the administration acknowledged the 15-year financial link between the nation's biggest spy agency and biggest college student organization. Meanwhile, rumors, reports, charges and

RR School Under Manpower Training Act

The Red River Vocational Technical School is certified to train under the Man Power Development Training Act. Students are referred to the school by Employment Security Division offices throughout the state. Curtis Hovell, Director of the MDTA of Little Rock, certifies personnel to train in the areas of instruction of the school.

Employers go to the Employment Security Division offices for workers for their businesses and when enough need to establish, the local office may send a qualified student to the Vocational Technical School for training. The student will be in an entry occupation for the job that is required. Two persons were enrolled in the April 17, to September 9, 1966 heavy equipment class and both are employed in the heavy equipment field.

At present their is one MDTA student in the school enrolled in diesel and heavy truck mechanics class. The state MDTA office has asked for several students to be enrolled for the February 27 quarter. These students are given small allowances to help defray school cost while attending the school. This is paid thru the state office. The school has been certified for training since April 1, 1966.

Mrs. Powell Didn't Sign Her Checks

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF
WASHINGTON AP — Testimony that Adam Clayton Powell apparently diverted thousands of dollars intended as his wife's salary may have made a strong impact on the select House committee weighing his fitness to serve in Congress.

Chairman Emanuel Celler D-N.Y., said Thursday's testimony by the Harlem congressman's estranged wife, Marjorie depicted

THREE FACES OF THE BUDGET

President Johnson's budget message to Congress actually covered three different budgets, or different ways of measuring income and outgo of federal funds. The most familiar version is the Administrative Budget. This abridged picture of receipts and expenditures omits all federal trust funds, such as the huge Social Security fund. The National Income Accounts Budget includes these funds and is regarded as the best measure of the over-all impact of federal finances on the economy. The Consolidated Cash Budget measures the government's total cash transactions, including lending operations not figured into the National Income Accounts Budget. All three budgets for fiscal 1968 show a deficit but of varying sizes—$8.1 billion for the Administrative Budget, $2.1 billion for National Income Accounts and $4.3 billion for Consolidated Cash.

Powell as being "in the position of taking checks from her, signing her name and disposing of the funds for his own purposes."

Celler described the soft-spoken Mrs. Powell as a "woman of great courage."

Sources close to the committee described the testimony as "closer to the Congress" than other matters being studied such as Powell's New York court troubles, in which appeals currently are pending.

The committee's major problem, the sources indicated, is to determine just what action is warranted by the evidence and by historical precedents covering past cases in which congressmen were expelled or punished.

Star's 4-Color
Picture Printing

T. J. Johnson telephoned The Star that he heard Radio Station WLS of Chicago broadcast a fine "plug" for our publishing of full-color photographs. WLS must have gotten the word from one of two sources: (1) Our advertising representatives in Chicago, or (2) the Chicago Tribune, to whom we sent a marked copy of our first production, Jan. 28, because the Tribune bought a Berkey color-separation machine just like ours right behind our purchase, No. 1 U. S. purchaser was Suffolk Sun, Deer Park, Long Island, with a 4x5 model; Hope Star No. 2 with the first 8x10 machine; and Chicago Tribune No. 3, also with an 8x10.

Editor The Star: I read with interest the item in the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association (Chattanooga, Tenn.), about the Hope Star printing its first four-color picture Jan. 28, using the new Berkey Direct Screen System machine. I am not familiar with this machine or process, but would like very much to have a tear-sheet of the reproduction if you still have one available. Sincerely

One of the greatest satisfactions a man gets out of life is to hear that the old equipment he sold off is doing a bang-up job for the new owners — and that's true of all the machines in the letterpress newspaper plant we liquidated last year. They were good standard machines to begin with, and we maintained them faithfully, spending $7,300 overhauling and rebuilding them as late as 1963 — even when we knew the conversion to offset printing was just around the corner. So our old machines sold fast, at good prices and are operating just as we guaranteed they would operate. Mac Dale and his father, J. M. Dale, went out of our building with our old press on a snow-bound day in January 1966, and made the 300 miles to Monticello, Miss., safely with their 12-ton burden. They represent the second and third generations of a weekly newspaper family, the Lawrence County Press having been founded by the grandfather, Joseph Dale, in 1888 — 11 years before Hope Star.

I promised to visit them and see our old press run again, and that I will do one of these days. Monticello is just south of Jackson, not far off the road from Hope to my sisters' homes in Sarasota, Florida. There's something about a local weekly newspaper plant that gets in the blood of every printer and newspaperman. For it's the birthplace of the big and complex industry that newspapers have become today.

Tech School
Open House
2 p. m. Sun.

The Red River Vocational Technical School will hold Open House from 2 to 5 p.m. on Sunday, February 19, it was announced by J. W. Rowe, director.

Visitors will be given an opportunity to tour the various buildings and see equipment used in training students. The instructors and other personnel will be on hand to greet the guests.

Leon Coker, director of the Pine Bluff Technical School, will address the visitors.

The school which only started operations last year is already making plans for expansion.

Sunday's Open House gives the residents of Hope an opportunity to visit the school which has considerable bearing on the economy and education of this entire section of Arkansas.

McMath Tells Clubs About
Vietnam War

"The Americans are in Vietnam in three capacities — as warriors, diplomats, and humanitarians," Major General Sid McMath, U. S. Marine Corps, told a combined meeting of Prescott and Hope Rotary Clubs at the Chuck Wagon Inn Emmet Thursday night.

"We are fighting two different wars over there. One is bloody, grubby military war, and the other war," as the men in Vietnam call it, "is an effort to reach the hearts of the people."

In the latter situation our men are teaching the people of Vietnam how to destroy rats, build schools, develop better breeds of livestock, and, in short, improve their way of life. This is an important part of the world, the Rotarians were told, and the Communists want it for military, political, and economic reasons. We must not let them have it.

Illustrating his talk with a large map, the speaker asked, "If you were the President of the United States, what would you have done in 1964?" The conditions governing his decision were, then, explained. The General said that, without a doubt, our men in Vietnam are the best troops we have ever put in the field.

The program was arranged by Vincent Foster, and Albert Graves introduced the speaker. The Hope Rotary Club President Paul Klipsch opened the meeting, and the Prescott Rotary Club President Harold Lyons dismissed the group. After the talk, a period of questions and answers followed.

Those present agreed with one Prescott Rotarian who said, "I've reached a better understanding of this war and why we are in it by listening to Sid McMath tonight than I've been able to learn in three years of delving into press releases."

Storm Hits
Wide Areas
of Nation

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Stormy weather, with snow sleet, rain, gusty winds and cold, continued to plague wide areas of the nation today. There were indications of moderating temperatures — but icy air will maintain a grip on many sections. A storm which left from 6 to 10 inches of snow in southern parts of Missouri and Illinois, northern Arkansas and Oklahoma, spread eastward across the Tennessee Valley into the Virginias early today.

Snow of 4 inches or more was expected in central and eastern Kentucky and the mountains of Eastern Tennessee. Hazardous driving warnings were posted for adjacent sections of Indiana, Arkansas, Missouri — mountain areas of North Carolina, the Virginias and Maryland.

Measures
Introduced Thursday

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Measures introduced in the Arkansas legislature Thursday included:

HOUSE — A bill appropriating $140 million in the next fiscal year and $142 million in fiscal 1968-69 for operations of the Arkansas Highway Department.

A bill providing for the inspection of meat in slaughterhouses not covered by federal regulations.

A bill creating a Moro Bay State Park at Moro Bay in Bradley and Union Counties.

A bill authorizing banks and trust companies in the state to issue capital notes.

A bill prohibiting the display of the Confederate flag or a replica in any advertisement or for any other purpose except to honor the Confederate States of America.

SENATE — A bill to appropriate $289,000 for the construction of 14 employees' houses, two warehouses, three barracks, one women's reformatory and the enlarging and equipping of the laundry at the State Penitentiary.

A bill to make a supplemental appropriation of $44,880 to pay the salaries of an assistant superintendent, a chief, two record clerks, eight wardens, seven gate guards, two medical technicians, a dietitian, a laundry supervisor and a chaplain for the State Penitentiary during the fiscal year ending June 30.

A bill to require State Penitentiary inmates to be placed under oath before they are questioned by anyone who intends to make the information public.

A resolution commending the Arkansas Dairy Princess, Miss Linda Edwards of Texarkana.

Mrs. Young
Heads Heart
Sunday Appeal

Mrs. George Young of 1505 S. Pine has been named Chairman of the 1967 Heart Sunday appeal in Hope, it was announced Thursday by Ben Lincoln, M. D., President of the Arkansas Heart Association.

She will head a group of Heart Volunteers who will visit their neighbors during the 4-day period which starts February 23 as the high point of the 1967 Heart Fund Campaign.

Mrs. Young has long been active in local Heart Association affairs. Last year she was a Ward Chairman for the campaign in Hope.

Other key chairmen in this year's Heart Campaign include: Mrs. Cindy Owens, Memorial Gifts; Mr. Mitch LaGrone, Business Gifts; Mr. Don Parker and Mr. Haskell Jones, Publicity; Mr. Steve Marlar, Special Events; Mrs. Greta Gough, Treasurer.

Heart Sunday Volunteers will distribute information telling what to do in the event of a heart attack and how to reduce the risk of heart attack. They will also receive Heart Fund contributions to support research, education and community service activities of the Arkansas Heart Association.

NSA Likely to Give Up Activities

WASHINGTON AP — The National Student Association is considering giving up its overseas activities in the belief its representatives would always be looked on as government spies.

As an emergency NSA board meeting on the organization's future dragged into the third day today, its leaders appeared convinced abandonment of its international branch will be the cost of its long-suffering financial link with the Central Intelligence Agency that now has come to light.

"I think that's very likely to happen," said a participant in the meeting, Jim Johnson, 23, last year's vice president for national affairs.

Trading Stamp
Bill Offered

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The attorney general's office said Thursday legislation to regulate trading stamps is within the power of the General Assembly.

"The legislature only has to determine that trading stamp regulation is necessary to public good," explained William Hass, an assistant attorney general.

The opinion said that House Bill 189, which would regulate use of trading stamps, and Senate Bill 46, to outlaw trading stamps, were constitutional.

Prison Report
Disappointing
to Some

By ROBERT L. SHAW
Associated Press Writer
LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The report of the legislative committee that investigated the state prison system disappointed some legislators Thursday, because it didn't contain any findings.

Rep. Allan Dishongh of Little Rock said he didn't think the five-member committee fulfilled its obligation to report findings as well as recommendations as set out by the resolution calling for the investigation.

Dishongh echoed the sentiments of other members of the Arkansas House.

Two House members of the committee, however, issued separate reports that included their findings. Rep. Ivan Rose of Rogers supported the State Police report on conditions and convict allegations in his. The other legislator, Rep. Van Taylor of Waldron, said he agreed with Rose's assessment of treatment of prisoners and the State Police report.

The committee report said the legislators could "indulge in a lurid recitation of prisoner conduct ranging from homosexuality to inmate loan sharks" but that there had been too much of this in the past, "most of which was based on misinformation and half-truths."

Rose and Taylor said they agreed with the overall report in all respects but one — that the governor's authority to fire the prison superintendent should be abolished.

Rep. Bill Wells of Hermitage has pending before the House a measure that would do this. The bill was brought up for consideration Thursday, but Wells withdrew it for the time being, apparently after finding it didn't have enough support.

Rose said in his statement to the House that if he had not made the investigation he would have labeled the State Police report of its inquiry last August "an exciting mystery novel."

"Let me say right here, I believe this report is as nearly true in all its facts as would be possible to obtain," he said.

The entire committee report said the legislators felt they should not make any statement on the alleged conduct of prison employees in view of charges filed recently by Pros. Atty. Joe Holmes of Pine Bluff.

Both Taylor and Rose said they didn't consider their separate statements "minority reports" but Rose noted that they had spent three times the amount of time at the two prison farms than the other three committee members — Sens. Knox Nelson of Pine Bluff and Ed Lightle of Searcy and Rep. Gean McDonald of Sheridan.

"I am convinced that the worst of the brutality stopped last fall," Rose said. "I am equally convinced that it did exist."

"Many calls were made on the Tucker telephone — the needles were ever present and were used on the fingers, toes and private organs. Jobs were bought — food was sold — and the price of an afternoon with your wife or girl friend was based on what the traffic would bear."

Rose said that he found at Tucker "much unrest — many scared — and some plotting to eliminate others."

"My most concern was for those young men who were scared and living in fear," he said. "They lived in fear of nightly beatings by other inmates over them, but their most prevalent fear was of the Tommy gun that had been removed from the gun cell and kept in the front office."

Taylor and Rose agreed that barracks were pitifully overcrowded, food was bad, sanitation was poor and medical care was inadequate.

Taylor said he believed that proper medical care would have prevented the death of Luther Bailey, 49, who died recently.

Senators Meet With Rockefeller, Discuss
Peace, CooperationBy GEORGE F. BARTSCH
Associated Press Writer

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Sen. Guy (Mutt) Jones of Conway had worn an olive branch in his lapel all day Thursday, but it was only a facsimile. There was a dove on his shoulder when he and eight other members of the Arkansas Senate called on Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller late that afternoon, but it was fashioned from a paper napkin. There were mutual pledges of co-operation and good will when the meeting ended an hour and 15 minutes later.

Of those questioned after the meeting, only Sen. Raymond (Chubby) Heern of Jonesboro, who had introduced the resolution adopted by the Senate Wednesday to establish the "olive branch" committee, seemed to feel that there had been genuine progress toward mutual amicability.

"I think it broke the ice," he said. "I think it's going to mean more harmony between us."

"I think it was a very nice gesture on their part," Rockefeller said.

Had he learned anything from the meeting that he didn't already know?

"No."

Had it changed his feelings in any way?

"No."

"I think the meeting convinced everyone that they are human beings and subject to error," Jones said. "I think a series of such meetings would lead to greater cooperation."

Had he learned anything from the meeting?

"No."

"No."

The meeting may have helped ease some of the tension between the Senate and the governor, but when it was over, Rockefeller remained a Republican and the senators were still lifelong Democrats, which is why they have been feuding over patronage and appointments since the General Assembly convened Jan. 9.

Jones, who remained silent until he was asked near the end of the meeting for his comments, put it this way:

"I don't think you would appoint a man that you knew wasn't going to support you."

"No," the governor said.

"Well, I don't think you can expect a Democratic senator to confirm a man who's going out and dig that senator's grave."

Sen. Q. Byrum Hurst of Hot Springs, president pro tem of the Senate, said he and his colleagues wanted to dedicate the rest of the session to co-

Reds Appear
Fleeing From Koreans

by ROBERT D. THMAN

SAIGON, South Vietnam AP — South Vietnamese troops reported killing 100 guerrillas to day as the Communists apparently were fleeing from their disastrous battle with Korean marines two days ago.

A government spokesman said the enemy troops were caught in a crossfire between 15 armored personnel carriers and artillery and air strikes. The government troops suffered no casualties, the spokesman reported.

The Korean marines on Wednesday reported killing 243 North Vietnamese regulars in a 3-hour action.

The U. S. Air Force announces that a number of seven raids in South Vietnam Thursday were attempted. It said five of the strikes were in support of some 2,200 U. S. 4th Infantry Division troops heavily engaged with a North Vietnamese regiment of some 2,900 men near the Cambodian border 230 miles northeast of Saigon.

After two days of battle, the fighting along the border slackened off today. A U. S. spokesman said the men of the 4th Division's 2nd Brigade had killed at least 128 North Vietnamese, but one American company sweeping the area three miles east of the border suffered heavy casualties from Communist mortars and automatic weapons Thursday.

Cities Bill to Bring a Veto

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A bill destined to be vetoed was recovered Thursday from the governor's office by the state Senate. The bill would raise the cities' share of general revenues.

Senator M. Morrell Gathright of Pine Bluff, sponsor of SB 65, met with Rockefeller early in the afternoon and agreed to recall the bill to the Senate.

The bill had passed both the House and the Senate but Rockefeller said he opposed it. The bill would raise the allocation to the cities from $3.7 million currently to $8.7 million in 1967-68 and $13.7 million in 1968-69.

The governor said the state's general revenue could not afford the increase.

SW Extension
Homemakers
Meet Here

Extension Homemaker leadership from counties in Southwest Arkansas met Thursday, February 16, with Mrs. Ernest Graham, Southwest District Director, to share ideas and establish goals to strengthen the objectives of the organization.

Extension Homemaker Council presidents attending the special luncheon and all-day session at Mrs. Graham's were enthusiastic about future plans. Those attending were: Mrs. Jackie Heckaday, Howard County; Mrs. Mattie Sanders, Pike County; Mrs. Naomi Hill, Sevier County; Mrs. Cecil Waller, Columbia; Mrs. Vivian Lambert, Miller county; Mrs. Verner McMurrey, Hempstead County.

Mrs. Graham will be meeting with other Extension Homemaker presidents at Arkadelphia, Friday, in a special planning meeting. Seventeen counties make up the Southwest District area.

Council presidents lead the Extension Homemakers organization in each county.

Mrs. Graham will meet with the State Extension Homemaker Council Executive committee in Little Rock, Thursday, February 23.

Killed in Car
Collision

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — James Mathews, 23, of Little Rock was killed Thursday night in a one-car collision here, police said.

A passenger in Mathews' car was treated for facial lacerations and kept in a Little Rock hospital for observation.
